Oh, I love that for SendFlow! 😄🤘

“Keep sending it.” feels right for your brand. It speaks to mountain biking, progression, commitment, and the willingness to push forward. It works as encouragement between riders, but it also fits the relationship between a coach and an athlete.

I'd consider three ways to use it:

OPTION 1 · MY FAVORITE

SENDFLOW

Keep sending it.

Bold, memorable, authentic to MTB culture.

Option 2 — More performance-oriented

Ride. Learn. Send it again.

Connects riding, coaching, and continuous improvement.

Option 3 — More community-oriented

Better lines. Better rides. Keep sending it.

Emphasizes progression through the SendFlow ecosystem.

My recommendation is to keep “Keep sending it.” as the main brand slogan. It's short enough for the website footer, the app loading screen, stickers, apparel, and even the Sender hardware packaging.

And there's something I particularly like about it: SendFlow is about analyzing what happened on the last descent so you can ride the next one better. The slogan carries that spirit without needing to explain the technology.

SendFlow — Keep sending it. 🚵
